9th Cir. Case Number(s) 24-5692

Case Name Brown, et al. v. Google LLC

Counsel submitting this form Russell Handy

Represented party/parties Adam Salcido

Briefly describe the dispute that gave rise to this lawsuit.

A class action against defendant Google, LLC, by incognito-mode users who were deceived by Google's misrepresentations regarding its data collection practices.

Briefly describe the result below and the main issues on appeal.

This is an appeal from the denial of a motion to intervene.

Appellant is representative of unnamed class members. He attempted to intervene to prevent the named class representatives from voluntarily relinquishing the right to pursue certification of a damages class against Google.

The district court denied the motion to intervene.

Describe any proceedings remaining below or any related proceedings in other tribunals.

There is a pending motion for approval of the class action settlement and a related motion for an award of attorney's fees.

However, on September 20, 2024, Google noticed the court that it intended to seek a stay of proceedings and a deferral of any ruling on pending motions pending the decision of this appeal.
